

Engagement Rings for The Love That Never Ends

The circular shape of engagement rings and wedding rings signifies the love that never ends. In olden days, rings used to be made up of hemp or braided grasses and these rings of commitment had to be changed every year. However, these days gold has replaced them and it is almost a popular choice. Gold is a symbol of beauty that lasts, that which is pure and good in strength. Marriage is expected to possess all these qualities and no wonder gold is a part of engagement and wedding.

Symbolizing Love

Expensive engagement rings and wedding rings are not only symbols of wealth, but they were considered to be the symbol of the groom to wed. In the past there was only one ring. However, after the coming of the waiting period between the engagement and the wedding because of two different rings. Gifting rings is a method of sealing one's vow in marriage. It is an age-old belief that there is a vein in the third finger of the left hand that traveled until the heart and this is one reason it gained its name of the ring finger symbolizing love.

Full Pantry

Another interesting ritual that we can remind ourselves with respect to engagement and marriage is the blessing of "may you have a full pantry." Some cultures sprinkle the newlywed with rice and nuts wishing them abundance. Some have customs of cooking the special meal, which is supposed to be the first of the many meals that the couple will share with each other through their lives. Through all these events, the wedding rings and engagement rings will be seen in the fingers of the bride and the bridegroom.

Money to Invest In Deposits

Almost in every country, the custom of engagement rings and wedding rings are seen. It is a sure fire bet that the to-be-weds do not want to miss anything for their best day. Weddings are expensive. It is important to ensure we take to the reality. You do not want to spend too much to the extent that you do not have enough money to invest in deposits for your new home. You do not want to be repaying your wedding loan for the next five years. This does not mean that you need to have a very frugal wedding either.

With some basic planning, it is possible to have the best wedding without missing on the essentials like rings and guests and prayers. Live well and love well.
